10. What about you? Imagine you have $ 500 to spend this weekend. Decide what you're going to do. Where will you eat? Where will you go at night? During the day? Write a short paragraph to tell your groupmates about it.

With $500 to spend this weekend, I'm envisioning a laid-back yet exciting time with friends. We'll kick off the day with a hearty brunch at McDonald's, indulging in our favorite burgers, fries, and milkshakes while catching up on each other's lives. After satisfying our appetites, we'll head to the cinema to catch the latest blockbuster film, immersing ourselves in an epic cinematic experience. As the sun sets, we'll amp up the energy and prepare for a night of partying. We'll hit up some local hotspots, dance the night away, and create unforgettable memories together. With good food, great company, and plenty of entertainment, this weekend is shaping up to be an absolute blast!

GUILTY PLEASURES

I have a confession to make to my girlfriend; I've been in the throes of a passionate love affair behind her back. It's my dad's fault. He introduced me well over twenty years ago. It's been going on for most of my life and will continue to do so, through thick and thin, for the rest of it. The name of my guilty pleasure? Sheffield Wednesday Football Club. The pride of Sheffield (ignoring for now the noisy neighbours from the other side of the city).

So imagine my chagrin when I set off into town one day in search of the big game only to find bar after bar showing nothing but the Liverpool match. One pretty well known drinkery on Division Street must have had about twenty-five TVs all showing the same thing! Now I understand that Liverpool are a big club in the Premiership, and the student population in Sheffield for whom most of these pubs cater for have possibly barely heard of Wednesday.

But where's the local pride? What happened to supporting your local team? It took me about an hour to find it. One small TV tucked into a dusty corner of a pub just outside the city centre.

The same thing happened about four months later at the start of the new season. Only this time, I was very pleasantly surprised, as I was in Bangkok. I was sat there in the balmy evening heat of Thailand, surrounded by palm trees, emerald Buddha statues and lady boys, watching the boys in blue battle to a draw with local rivals Leeds, all the while wondering how and why it took me the same amount of time to find the match in that glamorous locale, half way across the world, as it did in Sheffield city centre, a comparative stone's throw away from the sacred ground that is Hillsborough.

Globalisation of the beautiful game means it's almost as easy to watch my team play in South-east Asia as it is at home in the city they are based. For better or worse?

A PASSION FOR PIZZA

“When we first opened here, it was really difficult. Eight or nine months into it people weren’t walking in here, they (33) the product. The people who (34) were saying that it (the pizza) was soft, it’s a bit soggy. The word ‘soggy’ drives me crazy because it’s not that it’s soggy, it’s soft, it’s pliable, it’s foldable,” he said.

Johnny knew he needed to educate the public about the product he was making; he wanted (35) about the food, the style and freshness of it, so he began running master classes each month.

“The classes (36) popular and I have even trained a lot of pizza makers. I have trained the majority of the people (37) are home cooks and are really passionate about learning new things. I noticed that after doing the classes, people started to understand”.
